FPIES UK is a registered charitable incorporated organisation, based within the UK, which offers support to families affected by non-IgE mediated food allergies and Food Protein Induced Enterocolitis Syndrome (FPIES).

FPIES UK aim to raise awareness of FPIES and delayed food allergies throughout the UK. The charity has an excellent medical advisory board chaired by Dr George Du Toit and a dedicated team of volunteers who all have direct experience of caring for children with FPIES.

The FPIES UK team provide resources and training to parents, healthcare professionals and educators and offer vital emotional and practical support to families dealing with delayed food allergies. The charity strives to provide the compassion that is often missing due to a lack of understanding, and the empathy that can only come from personal experience of the complex issues involved.